PREFACE

This report presents statistics on the number of inhabitants of the State, its counties, and minor civil divisions (townships, etc.). In addition, separate figures are also presented for urban places, wards of cities of 5,000 or more, and other areas of the State. These data are based upon tabulations from the Seventeenth Decennial Census of the population of the United States, its Territories, and possessions conducted as of April 1, 1950. Provision for the Seventeenth Decennial Census was made in the act providing for the Fifteenth and subsequent decennial censuses which was approved on June 18, 1929.

The major portion of the information compiled from the Census of Population of 1950 will appear in Volume I, Number of Inhabitants, and in Volume II, Characteristics of the Population. This report is a preprint of Chapter 6 (Colorado) of Volume I, which is to present, in a single publication, statistics on the number of inhabitants for each State.

The materials presented here will also appear as Chapter A of Part 6 (Colorado) of Volume II. Volume II will comprise a series of separately published parts, one for each State and a summary for the United States. The use of separate parts makes the basic materials on characteristics of the population for a given State available to the public in a single publication. Within the part for a State, Chapter A will recapitulate the statistics on the number and distribution of the population within a State; Chapter B will present statistics on the general characteristics of the population of the various political subdivisions of the State, such as counties, incorporated places, and the like; and Chapter C will present data on the detailed characteristics of the population of the larger areas within the State, such as cities of 100,000 inhabitants or more and standard metropolitan areas.

The materials presented here were prepared under the supervision of Howard G. Brunsman, Chief, Population and Housing Division, and Dr. Henry S. Shryock, Jr., Assistant Chief for Population Statistics, by Dr. Henry D. Sheldon, Chief, Demographic Statistics Section, and Charles P. Brinkman, Chief, Population Distribution Unit; the compilation of the statistics was under the direction of Robert B. Voight, Assistant Chief for Operations. The collection of the information on which these statistics are based was under the supervision of Lowell T. Galt, Chief, Field Division. The geographic work, including the delineation of special types of urban territory and the preparation of maps, was under the supervision of Clarence E. Batschelet, Chief, Geography Division.

COLORADO

Number of Inhabitants

The State.—Colorado was organized as a Territory in 1861 from parts of Kansas, Nebraska, New Mexico, and Utah Territories. In 1876, without change in boundaries, and with boundaries as at present, it was admitted to the Union as the thirty-eighth State. Its population on April 1, 1950, according to the Seventeenth Census, was 1,325,089. The State has a land area of 103,922 square miles. In 1950 there was an average of 12.8 inhabitants per square mile as compared with an average of 10.8 in 1940. Among the States, Colorado ranked thirty-fourth in population and seventh in land area.

In 1860 the area which a year later was organized as Colorado Territory had a population of 34,277 (table 1). In 1950, 90 years later, the population of the State was nearly 39 times as large. Between 1870 and 1890, Colorado experienced a very rapid growth; and in all the succeeding decades except the decade 1920 to 1930 the State gained at a rate in excess of that for the Nation as a whole. The gain of 201,793 between 1940 and 1950 is the largest intercensal numerical increase since the decade 1900 to 1910.

Usual place of residence.—According to usual Census practice, which dates back to 1790, each person enumerated in the 1950 Census was counted as an inhabitant of his usual place of residence or usual place of abode, which is generally construed to mean the place where he lives and sleeps most of the time. This place is not necessarily the same as his legal residence, voting residence, or domicile, although, in the vast majority of cases, these different bases of classification would be identical.

In the application of this rule, persons were not always counted as residents of the places in which they happened to be found by the census enumerators. Persons in places where guests usually pay for quarters (hotels, etc.) were enumerated on the night of April 11, and those whose usual places of residence was elsewhere were allocated to their homes. Visitors found staying in private homes, however, were not ordinarily interviewed there. Information on persons away from their usual place of residence was obtained from other members of their families, landlords, etc. If an entire family was expected to be away during the whole period of the enumeration, information on it was obtained from neighbors. A matching process was used to eliminate duplicate reports for persons who reported for themselves while away and were also reported by their families at home.

Persons in the armed forces quartered on military installations were enumerated as residents of the States, counties, and minor civil divisions in which their installations were located. Members of their families were enumerated where they actually resided. In the 1950 Census, college students living away from home were considered residents of the communities in which they were residing while attending college, rather than as persons temporarily absent from their parental homes as was the practice in 1940. In 1950 the crews of vessels of the American Merchant Marine in harbors of the United States were counted as part of the population of the ports in which their vessels were berthed on April 1, 1950. In 1940 such persons were treated as part of the population of the port from which the vessel operated. Inmates of institutions, who ordinarily live there for long periods of time, were counted as inhabitants of the place in which the institution was located; whereas patients in general hospitals, who ordinarily have short stays, were counted at, or allocated to, their homes. All persons without a usual place of residence were counted where they were enumerated.

Urban and rural population.—The 1950 urban population of Colorado comprised 831,318 persons, or 62.7 percent of the population of the State (table 1). The urban population was living in the 40 urban places in the State and in other territory included in the urban-fringe areas of the Denver and Pueblo Urbanized Areas. More than two-thirds of the urban population of the State was living in urbanized areas (table 2).

The rural population of Colorado comprised 493,771 persons, or 37.3 percent of the population of the State (table 1). Of the rural population, 70,693 persons, or 14.3 percent, were living in 39 incorporated and 7 unincorporated places of 1,000 to 2,500 inhabitants (table 2).

Urban definition.—Under the urban definition established for use in the 1950 Census, the urban population comprises all persons living in (a) places of 2,500 inhabitants or more incorporated as cities, boroughs, towns,<sup>1</sup> and villages; (b) the densely settled urban fringe, including both incorporated and unincorporated areas, around cities of 50,000 or more; and (c) unincorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more outside any urban fringe. The remaining population is classified as rural. According to the urban definition used in previous censuses, the urban population comprises all persons living in incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more and areas (usually minor civil divisions) classified as urban under special rules relating to population size and density.

In both definitions, the most important component of the urban territory is the group of incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more. A definition of urban territory restricted to such places, however, would exclude a number of equally large and densely settled places, merely because they were not incorporated places. Under the old definition, an effort was made to avoid some of the more obvious omissions by the inclusion of the places urban under special rules. Even with these rules, however, many large and closely built-up places were excluded from the urban territory. To improve the situation in the 1950 Census, the Bureau of the Census set up, in advance of enumeration, boundaries for urban-fringe areas around cities of 50,000 or more and for unincorporated places outside urban fringes. All the population residing in urban-fringe areas and in unincorporated places of 2,500 or more is classified as urban according to the 1950 definition. (Of course, the incorporated places of 2,500 or more are urban in their own right.) Consequently, the special rules of the old definition are no longer necessary.

According to the new urban definition, the 1950 urban population of Colorado consisted of the following components: (1) The 759,939 inhabitants of the 36 incorporated places of 2,500 or more; (2) the 13,108 inhabitants of the 4 specially delineated unincorporated places of 2,500 or more; and (3) the 58,271 persons living outside of incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more in the urban-fringe areas of Denver and Pueblo. Since there were no places urban under special rule in Colorado according to the old definition, the population of the first element comprised the urban population under the old definition. The population of the remaining elements—71,379—represents the gain in the urban population which resulted from the change in definition.

Although the Bureau of the Census has employed other definitions in the course of its history, the statistics on the population by urban and rural residence for the years 1860 to 1940 are shown in accordance with the 1940 definition. The 1950 statistics are shown in accordance with both the new and old definitions.

Trends of urban and rural population.—Trends in the urban and rural population can be examined only on the basis of the old definition. On this basis, the urban population of Colorado nearly tripled between 1900 and 1950, rising from 260,651 to 759,939 (table 1). The largest numerical increase over the 50-year period came between 1940 and 1950, when the urban population increased by 169,183, or 28.6 percent. The most rapid rate of growth took place between 1900 and 1910. Of the 10 cities of 10,000 inhabitants or more in 1950, all but Trinidad participated in the growth of the urban population between 1940 and 1950. The rates of gain ranged from 16.2 percent for Grand Junction to 232.3 percent for Aurora (table 4). The number of cities of 10,000 inhabitants or more increased from 5 in 1900 to 10 in 1950, and the population living in cities of this size rose from 205,703 to 635,231 (table 3). The proportion of the population of Colorado living in urban territory increased from 48.3 percent in 1900 to 57.4 percent in 1950.

There was a steady increase in the rural population of Colorado from 279,049 in 1900 to 565,150 in 1950 (table 1). The rate of growth over the 50-year period ranged from 3.2 percent for the decade 1930 to 1940 to 42.2 percent for the decade 1900 to 1910. The largest numerical gain was also between 1900 and 1910. The proportion of the population of Colorado living in rural territory declined from 51.7 to 42.6 percent between 1900 and 1950.

Counties.—The counties in Colorado ranged in size from Hinsdale with a population of 263 to Denver with a population of 415,786. Between 1940 and 1950, 30 of the 63 counties in Colorado gained in population. Twelve of the 33 counties which lost population were among the 24 which also had had declines in the previous decade. Almost half of the population gain for the State between 1940 and 1950 was accounted for by Denver County, which had an increase of 93,374. The most rapid rate of growth took place in Jefferson County, which increased at the rate of 81.2 percent.

Minor civil divisions.—To the primary political divisions into which counties are divided, the Bureau of the Census applies the general term "minor civil divisions." The minor civil divisions in Colorado are election precincts and some of the cities. In addition, Denver is in a class by itself, being incorporated as the "City and County of Denver." The cities (other than Brighton, Boulder, Longmont, Fort Collins, Greeley, and Denver, which are independent of election precincts) and the towns form subdivisions of the minor civil divisions in which they are located.

Table 6 shows statistics on the population of each county by minor civil divisions for the last three censuses. The population of each incorporated place (other than Brighton, Boulder, Longmont, Fort Collins, Greeley, and Denver, which are independent of election precincts) and unincorporated place is shown in italics under the population of the minor civil division in which it is located. When an incorporated or unincorporated place lies in two or more minor civil divisions, the population of the several parts is shown in table 6 in the appropriate counties and minor civil divisions, and each part is designated by "part." Figures on the total population of such places are given in table 7. Unincorporated places are designated by "uninc." Changes between the 1940 Census and 1950 Census in the boundaries of the areas listed are shown in notes to table 6. For changes in boundaries prior to the 1940 Census, see reports of the Sixteenth Census (1940), Population, Vol. I, pp. 162-169, and reports of earlier censuses.

Incorporated and unincorporated places.—In 1950 Colorado had 252 places incorporated as cities or towns and 11 unincorporated places of 1,000 inhabitants or more. There were 891,389 persons living in the incorporated places, 131,450 of whom were in the 216 places with fewer than 2,500 inhabitants. Of the 21,843 inhabitants of the unincorporated places, 8,735 were in the seven places of 1,000 to 2,500 inhabitants. The incorporated places ranged in size from Ophir town with a population of 2 to Denver city with a population of 415,786.

Political units recognized as incorporated places in the 1950 Census are those which are incorporated as cities, boroughs, towns, and villages with the exception that towns are not recognized as incorporated places in the New England States, New York, and Wisconsin.

The Bureau of the Census has delineated boundaries for the thickly settled urban fringe around cities of 50,000 or more and has also delineated boundaries for unincorporated places of 1,000 or more which are densely settled population centers without corporate limits. Although there are unincorporated places within the urban fringe, it was not feasible to establish boundaries for such places and therefore they are not identified as separate places.

The count of urban places in the 1950 Census comprises all incorporated places of 2,500 or more regardless of location and unincorporated places of 2,500 or more which are located outside the urban-fringe areas. Incorporated places of less than 2,500 which lie in the urban fringe are not recognized as urban places.

Urbanized areas.—There were two urbanized areas within Colorado, the Denver and Pueblo Urbanized Areas, with 498,743 and 73,247 inhabitants, respectively. Of the 571,990 persons in the State living in urbanized areas, 479,471 were in the two central cities, Denver and Pueblo, and 92,519 were in the urban-fringe areas. The urban-fringe areas included a population of 41,855 in two cities and nine towns and 50,664 in the unincorporated parts (tables 2 and 9).

Each urbanized area contains at least one city with 50,000 inhabitants or more in 1940 or according to a special census taken since 1940, and some urbanized areas contain two or more cities of 50,000. Each urbanized area also includes the surrounding closely settled incorporated places and unincorporated areas that meet the criteria listed in the section below on "Urban fringe." Thus, the territory of an urbanized area may be classified into incorporated parts and unincorporated parts. (See urbanized area maps.)

An urbanized area also may be divided into central city or cities and urban fringe as defined below.

Central cities.—Although an urbanized area may contain more than one city of 50,000 or more, not all cities of this size are necessarily central cities. The largest city of an area is always a central city. In addition, the second and third most populous cities in the area may qualify as central cities provided they have a population of at least one-third of that of the largest city in the area and a minimum of 25,000 inhabitants. The names of the individual urbanized areas indicate the central cities of the areas.

Urban fringe.—The urban fringe includes that part of the urbanized area which is outside the central city or cities. The following types of areas are embraced if they are contiguous to the central city or cities or if they are contiguous to any area already included in the urban fringe:

1. Incorporated places with 2,500 inhabitants or more in 1940 or at a subsequent special census conducted prior to 1950.
2. Incorporated places with fewer than 2,500 inhabitants containing an area with a concentration of 100 dwelling units or more with a density in this concentration of 500 units or more per square mile. This density represents approximately 2,000 persons per square mile and normally is the minimum found associated with a closely spaced street pattern.
3. Unincorporated territory with at least 500 dwelling units per square mile.
4. Territory devoted to commercial, industrial, transportation, recreational, and other purposes functionally related to the central city.

Also included are outlying noncontiguous areas with the required dwelling unit density located within 1½ miles of the main contiguous urbanized part, measured along the shortest connecting highway, and other outlying areas within one-half mile of such noncontiguous areas which meet the minimum residential density rule.

URBANIZED AREA MAPS

The Denver and Pueblo Urbanized Areas, for which statistics are shown in table 9, are depicted in the following maps. The shaded areas, in combination, comprise the urbanized areas. To assist in locating the exact external boundaries of the areas, each boundary feature (street segment, political boundary, or other) has been assigned a number. The boundary segments thus numbered are shown on the map and the features to which they apply are presented in the following key.
